To Hold Farm Life Program In Marley Church

Because of the success and interest shown in the Marley Community Farm Life Program held in the Marley church last winter, the promoters Elmer Rowley and Rev. Paul Saunders, have been urged to hold another such program this winter.

The council of the project met recently and planned for this year's program which will contain important additions to that of last year, namely:

1. Classes for school kids and 2. a class for kindergarten children. This will enable a family to come knowing that the small children will be taken care of while mother and dad are in classes. The small school children will enjoy supervised play games etc. and the smaller ones will have fun also.

This year there are only two courses offered to adults—The one for the men, taught by Elmer Rowley is an omnibus course, on Agriculture and that he expects to cover on the various nights such things as: Care of Combines, Hog Production, Farm Water Systems, Dairy Production, Poultry, Farm Oils and Fuels, Electric Motors, plus anything else one may want to talk about.

The women's course is intended to cover on successive nights: Poultry Gardening, Home Beautification, First Aid, Child Care and Training, Nutrition etc.

Some of the courses which interest both men and women will be held jointly. It is planned to have specialists to talk for some of the nights when special advice may be needed and most of the women's courses will be taught by outside experts. In many of these courses, the use of the new Tri Purpose 35 mm film strip and slide projector will add interest.

As last year, so this year there will be Forums once a month. This year the whole evening will be given to them and there will be no classes that evening. Also, on Forum nights, the evening will start with a simple supper at 7:30 pm., after which the Forum will start.

Speakers are all leading men in their fields, and the topics are vital and interesting to all farmers. The topics are: Should Subsidies and the AAA be Continued? Conscription and National Preparedness Co-operation vs. Free Enterprise, Social Responsibility of Rural Communities, and the Banquet Forums on some aspect of World Affairs.

The Program will meet this year on Tuesday night. The usual coffee and donoughs or a reasonable facsimile thereof will be served every night after the classes.

The first meeting will be held on the night of December 11. The next meeting, on December 18th, will be a Forum. Then the Christmas recess and the next meeting date is on January 8th and every Tuesday night thereafter through April 2nd which will be the Banquet night.

Stand off by yourself in your dreaming. And all of your dreams are in vain; No grandeur of soul or spirit, Can man by himself attain. It is willed we shall dwell as brothers As brothers then we must toil; We must act with a common purpose As we work in a common soil. And each who would see accomplished The dreams that he's proud to own, Must strive for the goal with his brothers For no man can do it alone.

START DRIVE TO ENFORCE PERSONAL PROPERTY TAX COLLECTION

A drive is being inaugurated in Will County to force collection of delinquent personal property taxes. Court proceedings will be instituted against all property owners who fail to heed a notice to pay up their delinquent personal property taxes. Many tax payers feel the personal property tax law should be abolished inasmuch as many taxpayers never pay personal property tax and it is not fair to those tax payers who do pay this tax.

Mokena Couple Wed At Candle Light Service

A double ring wedding service was read for Miss Mary Catharine Reid, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George M. Reid of Mokena and Mr. Howard Strassenburg, son of Mr. Albert Strassenburg, also of Mokena, at a candle light service at 3:30 o'clock Sunday afternoon in St. John Evangelical church in Mokena. The pastor, Rev. Wm. Riemann officiated.

Palm and an archway created of orange blossoms and greenery decorated the chancel before which the couple spoke their vows. On either side of the arch was a tall candelabra and on the altar were two smaller candelabras the candles on which were lighted by Miss Eleanor Hostert who wore a floor length gown of yellow chiffon.

Before the ceremony Mr. Ronald Nelson of Joliet played on the organ, a group of love songs and accompanied Mrs. I. C. Chase of Joliet as she sang "O Promise Me" and "The Lord's Prayer" at the close of the service. He also played the Wedding march and Recessional.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a white taffeta gown with a round neckline, short puffed sleeves and a full skirt. Her fingertip veil fell from a headpiece of net leaves with pearls. She carried a white bible on which was a white orchid with ribbon streamers falling from it. She also wore a string of pearls.

Miss Roberta Bickley of Homewood, Ill., attended the bride as maid of honor and wore a floor length rose taffeta gown. Miss Helen Louise Reid served her sister as junior bridesmaid and Miss Phyllis Sandberg of Blue Island, as bridesmaid. Their gowns of blue taffeta were identical in style and each carried a colonial bouquet and wore a flower tiara in their hair.

Patricia Ann Reid was flower girl for her sister. She was very sweet in a floor length gown of rose taffeta, and carried a white basket from which she dropped flower petals in the path of the bride.

The groom was served by his brother Norman and by Roy Kohl and Chester Ebert.

Ushers were Norvel Strassenburg, cousin of the groom and Warren Mancke.

Mrs. Reid chose for her daughter's wedding a black crepe dress. Her corsage was of white pompons.

Following the ceremony a reception was held in the church parlors which was largely attended. Chrysanthemums and smilax ferns decorated the room.

The tea table was presided over by Miss Marilyn Reiman at the coffee urn and Mrs. Norman Strassenburg at the punch bowl. Lovely open faced sandwiches and delicate cookies were served.

A three tiered wedding cake was topped with a miniature bride and groom and after the bride cut the cake, she served each in the bridal party. Mrs. Berle Needham presided at the wedding cake thereafter serving to each guest.

Mrs. Wm. Riemann was in charge of the guest portion of the wedding book. This book had a very beautiful cover made of the same material as the bride's dress and which was painted with lovely flowers by Mrs. Esther Fields Davies. The latter has been the piano and organ instructor for many years of the bride. Mrs. Davies also tinted each illustration in the book.

Assisting in the dining room were Mrs. Ludwig Thiel, the Misses Dorothy Kohl, Ursula Thiel, Norma Jean Hostert and Donna Williams.

The bride was organist for some time and later entered the Presbyterian hospital in Chicago for training as a nurse. The groom had farmed for several years at Niles, Michigan. He and his bride have gone to house-keeping on a farm located at 183rd St. and 76th Ave., near Tinley Park.

Here Is How to Get Tasty Dinner

Residents of Wooded Estates have "Europe" an excellent production put past several weeks as great flocks of wild geese have been passing over at a tantalizing low altitude, but it took the driver of the Service Bakery truck serving this territory to take home the meat.

While driving a side road east of Wolf Road he noticed something move in the brush and stopped to investigate. The object of his attention turned out to be a wounded Brant that tipped the scales at about 6 lbs. All Mr. Driver had to do was separate the head from the body, pluck the feathers, clean it and we hope he enjoyed the wild goose dinner.

MOKENA COUPLE HONORED ON 25th WEDDING ANNIVERSARY

A large crowd gathered in St. Mary's hall on Wolf Road Sunday evening to celebrate the 25th wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Hentsch.

Square dancing was enjoyed, the caller for it being Mr. N. F. Heiman. Cards were also played. A mock wedding caused much merriment. The participants were: Mrs. Martin Meuhler, bride; Mrs. Irvin Marti, groom; Mrs. Ed Schmidt, best man; Mrs. Dorthea Roenser, bridesmaid; Mrs. Celia Walsh, flower girl; Mrs. Morry Larson, ring bearer; Mrs. Glenn Peterson, minister and the mystery man Mr. Glenn Peterson.

Many gifts and a purse was presented to Mr. and Mrs. Hentsch.

Refreshments were served at a late hour. All wished the honored couple many more happy years together.

SEE PLAY "WINGS OVER EUROPE"

Last Wednesday evening a number of members of the cast of "The Trial of Mary Dugan" journeyed over to Western Springs to see "Wings Over Europe" an excellent production put on by the members of the Western Springs theatre group, an all male cast, too, and excellent! They were accompanied by a goodly number of members of The Village Players, but I didn't see Mary Dugan there. The poor gal is perhaps worrying herself to death over her coming trial December 7, 8, 14 and 15, and decided she couldn't enjoy any entertainment. Be sure and be at the Palos Park Village hall one of these evenings and see what happens, rehearsals are going along in great shape, and we expect all to be in readiness Friday, December 7. Come and see "Whodunit."

FRANKFORT ATTORNEY BEING SLATED FOR COUNTY JUDGE

A move is on foot to run Attorney Albert H. Krusemark Sr., of Frankfort as a candidate for county judge in next spring's primary election. The voters of the eastern part of Will County feel that a candidate for a county office should be chosen from this area and they feel Attorney Krusemark is well qualified for this office.

There is also a very strong and favorable feeling to have Walter McGee present chief deputy in the sheriff's office run for the office of sheriff. Mr. McGee has had 8 years experience in this office and is said to be well qualified for this work.

JOLIET TOWNSHIP HIGH SCHOOL STUDENT IMPROVES PROJECT

Among the recent purchases of outstanding animals for the improvement of project work among the students taking agriculture at the Joliet Township high school is to be found one very outstanding Duroc Jersey boar purchased by Gordon Smith of Mokena. This sire was sold at the public auction held by Elmer Hoag, vice president of the Duroc Breeders Association, and is a grand son of Seco-Lo-Down and Seco-Lo-Wave. Seco-Lo-Down will be remembered by breeders of Durocs in this area as the sire whose offspring sold for more money in 1944 than those of any other Duroc sire in the United States. Gordon is exhibiting a Fat Duroc Barrow at the Junior Live Stock Feeding Contest to be held in Chicago, December first to December sixth.

Members of the agriculture classes attended the Hoag sale and the Urban sale of Durocs and helped Gordon in selecting this pig.

Albert Hentsch, Mokena stoker and appliance dealer says he has had a real run on stokers and that he has stokers on hand ready for delivery.

AN INCORPORATION LETTER

Most of us New Lenox citizens are proud of our town and we have a right to be. The Rock Island Railroad has just completed a nice remodeling job on our station, we are getting a nice new business building and just about all of our dilapidated houses have been purchased and the new owners have remodeled etc. New people keep on buying and moving in and the future of New Lenox looks good.

This brings Incorporation in mind—a touchy problem, yes, but not as bad as it looks or sounds so don't let it scare you. Our neighboring towns have it, and without increased taxes, so can we. They enjoy street lights and other little conveniences that we can have and therefore this letter.

I have been given the job as Secretary of the Incorporation Committee and as I stated a touchy job, and I did not relish taking it after last sides badly muddled up mess on both sides. However, in taking it I will assure both the pros and cons that there is only one way I work and that is on honest true facts as I know them and the cards on the table. I am not working for outside interests, I am not a stooge nor will I cover any facts or pull any chestnuts out of the fire for anyone. Those that elected me, however, didn't have this in mind and I have found them sincere and honest and willing to get the facts to you. What efforts I make toward incorporation will be because I think it is good for New Lenox and that we can benefit thru it. I am interested in street lights and I believe you will all agree with me that we need them. We can get them thru incorporation and it will also give us additional money for road maintenance and road oil, etc. I am not interested in sewers. We can't afford them without government aid, if however, sometime in the future we had another PWA I believe you will agree it would be good judgment for the presiding board to look into it.

We are planning a community meeting, date to be announced later and we are going to try and get a neighboring board to be with us and let you ask the questions. To clear up a misunderstanding of last year, a vote for incorporation is just a vote for incorporation and nothing else. If that is approved the next step is getting the tickets and candidates lined up and that is where you come in, each and everyone of you has the right to file and run for office of Mayor, alderman, etc. Trying to put a lot of things over a town is easier said than done and knowing something about it I can tell you that the board you would elect would find that there are some things they can do, but when it comes to sewers, water, paving increasing taxes etc. its no go, each proposition must be brought to a vote and that's where we stop them if it doesn't suit us. Your cards are coming in, lets keep them coming.

—Harvey J. Frick, Secretary Incorporation Committee.

We thank the people of New Lenox for the suggestions of topics to be discussed at a series of meetings to be held the early part of next year. But we want more suggestions and we want to hear from those opposed too.

Everyone loses if New Lenox doesn't incorporate. You lose prestige, you lose money, and you lose opportunities. It's your village, you lose what it loses.

If you don't believe what we say in the above paragraph, if you came to New Lenox to avoid Chicago taxes, if you are the kind of person whose first reaction to incorporation is that you want to sell your property and move away, then you will benefit most by these discussion meetings.

The people who voted against incorporation did so because they did not know enough about it. Most people accept the truism that you get what you pay for, but those who voted against incorporation didn't know that they were voting to continue to pay

New Homes To Be Built On 20 Acres

Last Monday Judge Adams acted on the petition for annexation of the old Mineral Spring Farm property into the corporate limits of Mokena. The hearing came up in county court and there being no objections, Judge Adams ruled in favor of the petition.

The land to be taken into the corporate limits of Mokena consists of 20 acres and it is planned to erect about 60 new homes in this new addition to be known as "The Mineral Springs Addition to Mokena."

At the meeting of the Mokena village board next Monday night an ordinance will be passed accepting the new territory into the corporation.

The matter of annexation does not require an election, this only being the case where a populated area is involved in which instance the residents of such area must be given the opportunity to say whether they are willing to have their territory annexed.

BAKER HELD UP

A member of the force of bakers employed at the Service Bakery in Tinley Park is reported to have been held up, robbed and beaten in Chicago last Sunday night.

For things they don't get. They didn't know that they were voting to pass up New Lenox money which would pay for lights, and we do not mean money from increased taxes. This is just one of the topics that will be discussed at the meetings.

Won't you look up that card we sent you last week and if you haven't replied will you do so today? The postage is already on the card. Just check or write in your topic and drop the card in the mail.

FIRE RATIONING

If you are an automobile owner in search of tires, here is one thing to keep your eye on. The tire industry is pulling all sorts of wires backstage to lift export restrictions.

At present they are permitted to export 400,000 truck tires and 100,000 passenger tires during the last quarter of this year. They would like to export a lot more. In the first place, they don't have to worry about OPA ceiling prices when selling abroad. Secondly, they can build up their postwar markets by getting in on the ground floor.

So they would rather sell more tires abroad. But if they do, they sell less tires at home. And today a tire certificate issued to a person desiring to buy a tire is nothing more than a hunting license. He can go out and hunt for a tire. If he's lucky enough to find one, his certificate entitles him to buy it.

DEPARTMENT OF PEACE

When the house foreign affairs committee heard testimony on the Randolph bill to create a department of peace, the star witness was a 64-year-old former mule-driver from Morgantown, W. Va.

Chairman Sol Bloom and members of his committee listened with rapt attention as Raymond M. Davis read a 16-page statement on why the United States should take the lead in establishing a new cabinet post to spread the gospel of peace throughout the world.

After he finished, white-thatched OP Rep. Charles Eaton of New Jersey declared:

"Mr. Davis, you may be unschooled, as you tell the committee, but you certainly are not uneducated. That is one of the finest documents I have ever listened to."

World Peace is not just a hobby with the West Virginia coal man, though he describes it as such. It is a burning ideal. A self-made business man who now operates two coal mines employing more than 500 workers, Davis had made many speeches at his own expense throughout the country urging a government department of peace. He also has written a proposed constitution for the United Nations that has attracted wide attention.

The state department thought well enough of his ideas to invite him to the San Francisco conference as an observer.

Rep. Jennings Randolph of West Virginia, freely admits that Davis was the chief spark plug behind his peace resolution.

"When I was looking at the rear end of a mule all day in West Virginia coal mines," says Davis, "I never thought that one day I'd be instrumental in having such an important piece of legislation introduced in congress."

Note—The second initial of Davis' name stands for "Moses." Perhaps what we need are more plain, garden-variety Moses' of the Davis type, instead of striped-pants diplomats, to lead us out of the international wilderness.

BOWLES HOLDS INFLATION FLOOD

OP Administrator Chester Bowles is one of the most abused men in Washington. Everyone is badgering him. Congressmen demand that their constituents increase the price of this or that. Farm groups want to raise the price of milk or cattle. Business groups want to abolish all ceiling prices.

Probably the common man doesn't appreciate it, but here are some things which will happen if Chester Bowles loses his battle to stop the inflation flood:

1. Every person putting his money in life insurance does so with the idea of getting his money back—100 cents on the dollar. But if there is inflation, the insurance dollar will be worth 75 cents, 50 cents, or even 30 cents.
2. Every person on a retired pension, whether a railroad employee, a college, a school or a big corporation employee, will see his income shrink if there is inflation.
3. Every widow living on money left by her husband will see that income shrivel.
4. Every school teacher will have great difficulty having her salary move up when the value of the dollar moves down.
5. Every civil servant, whether working for city, state or federal government, will be in the same boat as the teachers.
6. Every college endowment, every charity or other enterprise with fixed invested capital stands ready to have its investment evaporate with inflation.

CAPITAL CHAFF

When Eugene Meyer, publisher of the Washington Post, celebrated his 70th birthday, his family gave him a party on Sunday, the Post staff gave him another one on Monday, and on Wednesday he was guest of honor at a luncheon.

One high government official is certain, from studying a list of Presidential appointments, that Harry Truman does not intend to run for President in 1948. "Obviously," he says, "Truman's preparing to run for governor of Missouri."

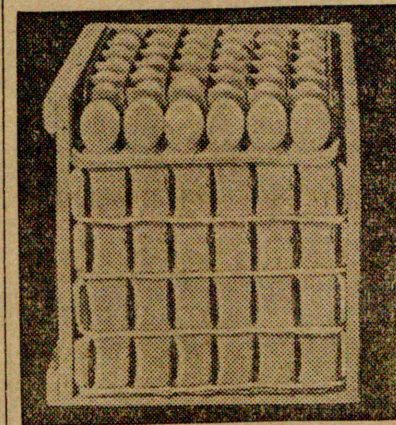

It Pays to Properly Candle and Pack Eggs

Protect Quality Eggs And Increase Profits

Farmers will profit at least three cents a dozen for candling eggs. The War Food administration set support prices of 27 cents for candled eggs and 24 cents for uncandled eggs. But properly candled eggs will result in even greater profits by developing a quality market and increasing consumer demand.

After the eggs have been properly candled, the final value depends upon how they are handled when sent to market. They are largely judged by the action of the yolk. If eggs are packed sharp end up, there is a tendency for the yolk to rise through the white and to appear prominent, thus lowering the market value.

When eggs are packed with sharp end down they maintain their quality better.

When an egg is fresh and in good condition, it has a normally thick white and the yolk stays fairly well in the center when the egg is twirled in front of the candle.

A quality egg will show little, a poor egg will show a large air space dark yolk and moving yellow.

Malaria-Like Disease

Found in So. Illinois

The presence of anaplasmosis, a malaria-like disease of cattle, has been found in southern Illinois by veterinary specialists of the Illinois university. Fear that it may spread to other states seems to be well founded.

A serious disease of cattle and sheep, anaplasmosis, commonly observed in the South, has seldom been encountered in northern states. It is spread by biting or blood-sucking insects. Prominent symptoms include loss of appetite, weakness, rapid pulse and breathing and pale or yellowish skin and mucous membranes. Laboratory tests should be taken when the presence of anaplasmosis is believed to exist.

New in Machinery Dehydrator

During the winter months, when the home dehydrator is no longer required for fruits or vegetables, it may be used as a clothes drier, room heater or food warmer.

With some types of home dehydrators, the heating elements may be removed and used as room heaters and the cabinet utilized for storage.

Butter Color Defects

Mottles result from uneven distribution of the salt and from insufficient working of farm butter. It is the most common color defect. This defect may be overcome by more complete working of the butter, by moistening the salt before adding it to the butter and then working the butter well, or by working the butter partially, allowing it to stand a few hours, and then completing the working process. A greasy condition will result from underworking.

AN INNER SANCTUM MYSTERY
STARRING ARAB AND ANDY BLAKE WNU FEATURES

THE STORY THUS FAR: Lt. Andy Blake, Operations, was joined by his wife, Arab, who started to work for Ordinance in Washington. She secured a room at a house on "Q" street, run by Renee, whom Andy recognized as a girl he had known in Paris. He got into a fight with Joey, one of the roomers, who was knocked out by "his boss," Jones, who lived next door. Arab found out that the house was being used by German agents. While looking over the ground one night, Andy heard Renee scream. He ran to the back of the house and was attacked by Jones, who was stopped by Renee. He was introduced to Andy as Mr. Jones. Andy decided to search Jones' home.

CHAPTER VII

The files went back five years. Until Pearl Harbor the letters were violently isolationist. Nothing wrong with that, in itself. No matter how wrong the isolationists may have been, plenty of them were sincere and patriotic. They had believed that the lion could lie down with the lamb. But the man who wrote these letters hadn't been sincere. He had written them in this room, as evidence by a half-completed one on the desk. He had read Haushofer and Clausewitz and Mahan and Homer Lea and had still written isolationist stuff. He had been playing his dear subscribers for suckers.

The desk was locked. I didn't feel like breaking it, and some more laws, wide open. I rummaged through the wastebasket, and found a crumpled sheet of paper on which had been written:

BETTY—I hope I can make it but we've been working late a lot of nights. Genevieve—it's a wonder to me that trains don't get even more crowded these days, but maybe people are learning to stay home.

Neither of those notes meant anything to me, but I put the paper in my billfold, anyway. Then some bits of paper on the floor near the window caught my attention. Plain Mr. Jones had torn up a newspaper clipping, violently. The pieces were ragged and crumpled; the carbon smudges of a rubber heel hinted that he had ground the paper into the carpet with his foot.

I pieced the clipping together. The story was based on a recent broadcast, picked up by the FCC, from a station inside Germany. A man calling himself Gustav Siegfried Eins had told the German people that if only Hitler would kick out that pig Himmler and his Gestapo, all Germany's troubles would be over. He had put in a plug for Germany's old-school generals and admirals, even mentioning by name Admiral Canaris of German Naval Intelligence. They'd have won the war by now, the commentator said, but for Himmler's bungling.

The room had been a small gold mine, although it hadn't given up its most important secret. This was the room in which Paula Thompson had seen something curious a week ago. I switched off the flashlight and went to one of the windows. It was possible to see the pin oak outside Arab's window, and I was willing to swear that this was the window which had once been framed like a target in the notch of the pin oak.

I stared out into the darkness, and then little cakes of ice began breaking away from my spine and drifting out through my arteries. Something had stirred in the unkempt garden. A figure was moving through the bushes toward the Fielding house. Someone else had decided that it was a nice night for a prowler. Someone else wanted to pry around in the Fielding house while everyone was away. But this time the broken stick by the front door wouldn't scream a warning. It would just be a broken stick, not a broken neck. The booby trap was about to be sprung.

The figure in the shrubbery was close to the Fielding house now, moving with less caution. There was a narrow starlit space to be crossed to the last protecting bush. After that, the prowler might decide that there was nothing to worry about, and might walk confidently up to the front door. The figure slipped across to the last bush. Starlight glimmered for a moment on slim silken legs and on shoulder-length blonde hair.

It was Arab. I didn't think anything out. My fingers hooked around a straight chair and slammed it at the window. It went through in a crashing spray of glass. I stuck my head in the opening and let out a yell that scalded my throat. Not a yell to Arab. Not a warning. I made it a shriek which curled off into a maniacal laugh.

A whip cracked beside my ear and there was a slamming noise and plaster smoked from a small hole in the wall. I hit the floor and stayed there. He had taken a snap shot as I crossed in front of a window. The guy could shoot. If I had been moving a trifle slower he might not have marked the plaster.

My wild career had ended in the study. I hugged the floor and wondered whether Plain Mr. Jones were on the second or third floor of the Fielding house. If he were on the second, I could crawl safely out of the room, zip downstairs, and leave quietly by the front or back door or by a window on the side away from the Fielding house. But if he were on the third floor, he would have a line of sight which would hit the floor of the study near the door . . . and a crawling man would make a sweet target. The best idea might be to make a sprint for it.

I lay there and worked things out as carefully and wrongly as possible. Because, suddenly, every light in the house went out. A master switch had been thrown downstairs. I was alone in the house with the fat man. I could picture him creeping up the stairs. His head would be sunk in its collar of fat. He would be feeling the air ahead of him with pudgy fingers. Once again my memory flashed me that rice-paper print with Fujiyama in the background and a fat, deadly Jap wrestler hunching forward in the foreground.

It was no use lying there. I couldn't hope for outside help. In this neighborhood of big estates a distant shot would pass as a car backfiring. I got up, grabbed another straight chair, ran quietly into the black hall and heaved the chair downstairs. It came off something soft near the bottom. Something which grunted. I rushed back, got an upholstered chair, and sent that down too.

I tried a couple of gibbering laughs to help the nerve war along, then crept about easing light switches into off position and unscrewing all the bulbs I could find. Now and then I lobbed a bulb down the stairs to keep him from sneaking up; they exploded nastily and probably sprayed glass over quite an area. But I ran out of light bulbs much too soon. There was nothing now to keep him from slipping upstairs. He must realize that I didn't have a gun.

I realized that I had picked a blind alley. I should have stayed in the hall and waited for him to make a noise. Now I was afraid to return to the hall. He might already be upstairs. I might be the one to make a noise, and he might be the one waiting. I paped myself against a wall of the study and lost interest in being the life of the party.

I stood quite still and felt out on both sides for a weapon. My fingers touched something, explored it, then leaped away as if scorched. The something had been a bald head.

For a moment I couldn't budge. Then I got tough with myself. Plain Mr. Jones wouldn't have waited patiently while I tickled his head. And he couldn't have shrunk so much in height. I felt for the object again, located the bald head, and found a series of scallops circling it. It was the laurel-wreathed bust of Caesar.

I slid my hand down to Caesar's neck. The bust was heavy but manageable. I crouched, held the bust up and to the right, away from my body, and crept out from the wall. If I had estimated the fat man's position correctly I would pass between him and the dull gray rectangle of one of the windows. The bust ought to make a nice silhouette. I moved two steps, three, four, five—

Everything happened at once. The bust of Caesar twisted out of my grasp and a shock numbed my arm and the fat man screamed. He had mistaken Caesar for me, as I had hoped. He had leaped and clipped it with the edge of his palm. My arm tingled as if he had used a baseball bat. I reached out, touched serge-covered bulk, ripped hooks into him.

Then I caught it. A blow slashed across my right temple and sent sparks flickering through my head. It spun me around. I fought for balance like a drunk trying to stand in a canoe. I stumbled toward the spot where the door ought to be, and rammed into a wall. I got panicky. I was lost. I couldn't locate the door or windows or the fat man. I yanked the flashlight from my pocket and swept its beam around the room. The door was a foot away. In the middle of the room the fat man seemed to be wrestling insanely with himself. His right hand dangled uselessly while his left was crossed over his body trying to dig into his right pants pocket.

I watched stupidly. I didn't get it—not until his pocket ripped and his left hand swung out gripping a revolver. Only one thing saved me: he wasn't a southpaw. He had the gun reversed and his fingers were tripping over each other as he tried to hold it and turn it one-handed.

A lot had happened in about ten seconds. It had happened too fast for me. I was still dizzy and my thoughts were a couple of seconds behind the action. It was like being paralyzed. Things were moving in high and I was in low gear. I watched him juggle the gun, and then there was a blast of sound and a flash two feet from my face. Caesar's head exploded into fragments. It hadn't been marble at all, just plaster of Paris with a fake finish. I collected these details and sorted them like an old man counting change.

Somebody had spoken, too. Had snapped, "Drop it—fast!" And, by the time I began wondering whether the speaker had meant my flashlight, the fat man's gun clattered obediently to the floor. I added these curious details to the others.

A familiar voice whispered in my ear, "Keep that light in his eyes."

I nodded and did as I was told. The light didn't seem to penetrate the fat man's glasses. The lenses bent the light, refracted it, as if made of flawed quartz. He didn't look like a man wearing glasses. He was a new big kind of insect with flat glaring eyes. Down at floor level, so far outside the cone of light that it was hard to see details, a hand scooped up the revolver. A hand with slender fingers. A girl's hand. It must have been Arab who had spoken to me.

She tugged at me, and we backed through the door. I was catching up with events now. I kept the flashlight aimed back into the room. The fat man didn't move; only the flat disks of his glasses turned, looking into the light.

Arab shook me, "Andy," she whispered, "can you run?"

"Run? Run?" I rattled my head from side to side. The dizziness shook together in one corner under my right temple. The spot began to hurt, but it was all to the good. The pain was like sniffing ammonia. "I'm O. K. now," I said. "Beat it downstairs and cover me."

We climbed into the car and let it play jeep for a couple of blocks. I drove silently, conscious of Arab edging closer to me and peeking up at my face. Every time her shoulder touched mine it left a tingle. I wanted to grab her and tell her that she was a little idiot and I was a big one, but it wouldn't make sense. Not with Joey Raeder in the picture. All I could do was to go on trying to keep her out of the obit columns.

Just then she switched off the ignition and took the key. The car coasted to a halt, and she said meekly, "That was a hint."

I said, "This will acknowledge receipt of your hint of October twenty-second. It is regretted that no action can be taken at the present time."

"You stop that, Andy Blake," she flared. "What does a girl have to do nowadays to get a pass made at her—flash a gun?"

"We've got to get you back to that picnic. You need to be fitted with either an alibi or armor plate."

"Andy, don't I mean anything to you any more?"

"I don't know. I've got to think things out."

"I do, Andy, I know I do! Or you wouldn't be taking such care of me. Like tonight and that time you got Sadie to shorten my white raincoat. She told me about it. Why did you go to all that trouble if . . . if . . ."

"I'm just trying to save the War Department a good secretary."

"I don't want to talk about secretaries," she wailed. "Why are we talking about secretaries? All I wanted was for you to kiss me and you talk about secretaries and I'm all mixed up!" She tucked her head down on my arm and began to cry.

I patted her head. Her hair felt warm and crinkly. "You're just upset by this mess tonight," I mumbled. "You think I kept you out of some grief and you're grateful and—"

"I am not grateful! I'm not grateful to you for anything except loving me and now you don't any more. And you might just as well stop looking after me because I don't care what happens." She sat up and pounded my arm with her fists. "If I don't mean anything to you, what are you going around saving me for?"

I couldn't help it. I growled, "For Joey Raeder."

She took a short quivering breath and held it and stared at me. "Oh, darling," she said, "you haven't been worrying about him!"

"I couldn't help it. I tried to tell myself you were only stringing him along to pump him for news, but it didn't work. Not after you didn't tell me about those dates."

IMPROVED UNIFORM INTERNATIONAL SUNDAY SCHOOL Lesson

THE CHRISTIAN AND HIS ECONOMIC RELATIONS

LESSON TEXT: Deut. 8:17, 18; Luke 12:13-21.
GOLDEN TEXT: A man's life consisteth not in the abundance of the things which he possesseth.—Luke 12:15.

Peace and the postwar period find America, and in fact the entire world, plunged into tremendous economic problems far too deep for any man or group of men to solve. We honor those who are laboring day and night to meet the threat of unemployment, the question of reconversion and readjustment to civilian production, of feeding a hungry world, etc. But we say again, they cannot find the answers in the wisdom of men; they must have the wisdom of God.

We need to turn anew to the economic principles taught in God's Word. If men will only recognize them, and deal with their fellowmen in the light of their teaching, the many knotty problems will surely find solution.

There is need, first of all, of a fundamental philosophy concerning possessions which will make man deal properly with them. The first section of our lesson says to us:

I. Think Right About Wealth (Deut. 8:17, 18).

How trenchant and altogether fitting are the words of Scripture! Nothing could describe our times more succinctly and accurately than verse 17. Men are glorying in their ability to do things.

Man has even gone so far as to develop a weapon of warfare, the atomic bomb, so powerful that he fears it might be used to wipe out all civilization. Even secular leaders are now saying that we must have a spiritual rebirth if we are to use such things for good and not for evil. Man needs God now more than ever.

We honor those who by skillful hand and brilliant brain produce excellent and thrilling results. But our question is, How many are there who say, God has done this thing; He gave the strength and the skill; His is the honor? Some there are who truly recognize Him, but they are few indeed. Their name is legion who say in their heart, "My power and the might of mine hand hath gotten me this wealth" (v. 17).

Joseph Parker points out that a deep conviction of the fact stated in verse 18 "would turn human history into a sacrament." He says, "What a blow this text strikes at one of the most popular and mischievous fallacies in common life; namely, that man is the maker of his own money!"

II. Act Right About Wealth (Luke 12:13-21).

Most of us think of money as something we want to get hold of and use for ourselves, but if it belongs to God, and we are only his stewards, we must put away that impulse. "Take heed," said Jesus, "and beware of covetousness" (v. 15). It is a deadly and deadening sin, all too common even among Christian people.

The teaching of this whole passage of Scripture is so directly opposite to all ideas regarding such matters accepted by the world at large, that it may be a total surprise to some readers and attendants at Bible school.

The yardstick of success in the world for an individual, an organization, or a nation, yes, even for many a church, is the possession of wealth, or property, or other "things." Write it in large letters on the hearts and minds of our boys and girls, "A man's life consisteth not in the abundance of the things which he possesseth" (v. 15).

The one who was known to his friends (and to himself) as "a rich man" (v. 16), to whom God knew as a "fool" (v. 20), had more than he could use for himself. He had to build new and bigger barns, and could not see the "barns" that were already prepared, for, as Ambrose says, "Thou hast barns—the bosoms of the needy, the houses of widows, the mouths of orphans and infants."

He was a fool who loved money for itself and for himself. One wonders what he had to say for himself when that very night he was called into the presence of God to give an account of his stewardship (v. 20). If you are similarly situated, what will you say in that day?

There is an important point which we must note. Jesus expressly repudiated the connecting of His name with the so-called "social gospel" in His reply (v. 14) to the question of the covetous fellow who regarded his inheritance as of more importance than brotherly love.

Those who are ignoring the gospel of redemption and claiming Jesus as a social reformer, or the "judge and divider" of some new economic solution for the world's ills, need to read and ponder this verse.

Every Christian is interested deeply in social problems, but knows that the first concern of Christ and His followers is the souls of men.

HELPING ORGANIZATIONS TO HELP RETURNING VETERANS

Commenting on the great interest shown in the new sound movie "Heaven With a Fence Around It" presented at the Sinclair Farm Meeting, Nov. 26 John Cole, Sinclair Agent at Tinley Park said.

"Heaven With a Fence Around It" was produced by the Sinclair Refining Company to help solve one of the great problems of our times—the way to help returning veterans successfully re-establish themselves in civilian life. And, judging from audience reactions, the picture is quite successful.

"As a result," he continued, "many civic clubs, veterans' organizations, churches, schools, lodges and so on throughout the country are requesting the use of this film for local showings."

"And Sinclair is more than willing to cooperate with all organizations wishing to present it because the picture can do a lot of good for our returning boys and girls. It's timely. It's packed full of romance and human interest. It's educational. And it is of interest to every civilian, every service man and every discharged veteran."

"Those wishing to show 'Heaven With a Fence Around It' are welcome to call me, John Cole, at Tinley Park for details on obtaining the film. The telephone number is Orland 189R1. There is no charge for use of the movie except the expense of returning the film to us."

THE LOW DOWN from HICKORY GROVE

You know, it is getting so folks skip over, and don't read these row on row of figures about what it is costing to run the Govt. and the States. If the paper says there are 2 million more folks than necessary on the tax payers back and they are pullin' down around 4000 million in salaries a year, not counting their swindle-sheets, nobody mums. Its more fun to read the funnies, If it is 10 million or 101 billion—what of it—taxes are not due for awhile and maybe the other guy will have to pay it anyway, and especially if the money is being spent in Alabama which is far away, if you happen to live in Idaho or South Dakota.

Folks are fed up on figures, but they are hot for pictures—so give them pictures, funnies or any kind. If the papers say the Director of Uplift gets 10 thousand a year, and free gas, nobody stirs, but if you would paint the gents picture on the door of his shiny car, with his salary beneath same, folks would open an eye. And the mayor's car, and a million others, paint all of them—and with pictures. Let everybody see what the people on the tax payer's back look like. Let folks see via pictures versus figures, it might clear the atmosphere.

Yours with the low down,
JO SERRA

New Department Created In The Public Service Co.

The Public Service Company of Northern Illinois has announced the appointment of Milburn L. Forth as industrial economist to head up the research activities of the recently created territorial information department of the Commonwealth Edison group of companies.

A native of Evanston and a graduate of Indiana University, Forth has served as economist for the War Production board in Washington for the past three years. Prior to his service with WPB he was economist for the industrial division of the National Resources Planning Board.

During a part of his tenure with WPB, he also held the position of assistant chief of the agency's plant location branch and played an important role in the location of war production plants throughout the country, including several in the Chicago area.

The new department, staffed with statisticians, industrial specialists, tax analysts, and other business experts, will assemble and make available factual data about Chicago and Northern Illinois as an aid to business, industry and agriculture. It will gather data on taxes, transportation, markets, labor supply, residential construction, raw materials, industrial production, distribution, and other factors having a bearing on industrial development of the area.

The fact finding group also will serve as a "feeder" for the companies' recently launched advertising campaign designed to focus national attention on the inherent economic and geographic advantages of the Chicago and Northern Illinois area.

Forth said his research staff will cooperate fully with local civic groups and other agencies interested in attracting new industries or holding plants already located.

THE TELEPHONE STRIKE IS OVER

ALL 8,700 members of the Illinois Telephone Traffic Union have returned to their switchboards, again to give you the pleasant telephone service to which you are entitled. Also back are the individuals of other telephone unions who felt they should not cross the picket lines.

Long Distance service is normal; local service in 105 Illinois cities once more assures the voice with the smile.

This is good news to you—and to us.

We thank you for patience and cooperation during service difficulties. We also thank the thousands of telephone workers who put public service above the disputed issues. Many of these were supervisory people who put in long and arduous hours. Some were former operators who volunteered; others were retired employees now on telephone pensions who came back to help out. We are especially grateful to all of them for the emergency services given.

RETURNING WORKERS WELCOMED

As the returning workers we say—Welcome back. We are glad to have you again at your posts. There will be no prejudice, no ill feeling on our part.

We hope that the Union members will adopt this same broad view so that there will be no unpleasantness directed at those telephone workers who stayed at their posts to provide emergency service to the public.

And now—"Number, Please?"

He's Home From The Service

This week we report an interview we had recently with Mr. Carl Eggert, who was before his discharge, a Private First Class. He formerly lived with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Eggert in Tinley Park, but who have moved to Chicago a few months ago. Mr. Eggert is married and has two children, a son Kenneth, 4 years old and a daughter Corrine, two years old. While he was serving in the army, Mrs. Eggert and children lived with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Arling in Joliet.

Carl was inducted into the service April 6, 1944 and sailed on the Queen Elizabeth Aug. 20, 1944, landing at Scotland Aug. 26. He and the company of infantrymen of which he was a member, entrained at once for England to an assembling camp where they stayed for a week before embarking from Liverpool for St. Lo, France. It took them two weeks there to assemble their equipment and then they left by train for Belgium.

They joined the 60th Infantry of the 9th division of the 1st army, and in a week's time they entered Germany, by truck and it was Oct. 20th, that they experienced their first combat, it being at Duren, Germany. Altho Carl did not say much about the fighting, we did find out that it was very severe and continuous and on Dec. 11th he was hit by shrapnell in the left arm which put him out of the fighting.

When he was hit, he walked a mile to First Aid station, then was put on a train for Paris, France, to a general hospital where he underwent an operation. After five days in this hospital, he was taken to the 135th general hospital in England where he stayed for a month. He then was moved to a convalescing hospital at Coventry, England, and on Mother's Day he sailed from South Hampton on a hospital ship and landed at New York May 20th. He was there a week when he was taken to the Fitzsimmons General hospital at Denver, Colo., where he remained a patient until Sept. 11 when he received a medical discharge.

During his stay at Denver he enjoyed a 30 day furlough which he spent with his family. Carl is looking well and feels very good now with but little bother from his injured arm, and is now working at his job he had before entering the army, that of inspector at the McCormick Implement Plant at Chicago.

He wore the ETO ribbon with one star, Good Conduct ribbon, Purple Heart, Combat Badge and the 9th Division Patch.

Among the souvenirs which he brought home were a fountain pen and pencil set from Germany, also money from that country and several pocket books. He has a brother, Pvt. Walter Eggert who has been in the Service since April 1945 and is now in the Army of Occupation in Japan.

We do so welcome all the returning men and those on furlough to call at our office, sign our register book and give an opportunity for an interview. We have been asked if we interview returning men from communities other than Mokena, and we want to make it plain that we do so very much want all the Service men in this territory to come, especially those who have been receiving the News-Bulletin. The Tinley Park Times and the Orland Park Herald.

Mokena PTA News

The November meeting of the Mokena PTA was held Tuesday evening, November 27th with a large attendance. Mrs. Floyd L. Tucker of Summit was the speaker and her subject was "Recreation for Teenagers". She has had much experience with the youth of today and highly indorses the Youth Centers as a means to combat the juvenile delinquency that has become such a problem.

A report from the carnival committee was made and a profit of $296.36 was made. This amount added to what was already in the bank will help the organization to do what it has planned to do for the youth of this community.

A membership of 102 is the last report of the membership committee. There are still twenty families in the community that have children in school that are not represented by membership in the PTA by at least one parent. The school board and teachers are represented 100 percent by membership.

It is our responsibility as parents to cooperate in every way that we can to bring about better conditions for our youth. With the problems that are facing us today, we must bring about the right living conditions for each and every child that they may help build a lasting peace the world is so eagerly striving for. If constructive work and entertainment is planned and produced for our youth, it has been proven time and again that they develop into better citizens. Your local PTA is an organization that is working for these ideals and needs the cooperation of each and every parent. Won't you join now and help build these ideals?

New Nash "600" Makes Bow

ADVANCED ENGINEERING GIVES AMAZING NEW ECONOMY

The new Nash "600" will be on display here Nov. 30th it was announced today by Harry Schuldt of the Blue Island Nash Sales, 12314 S. Western Avenue, Blue Island, Illinois.

Discarding the old system of body and frame, the new Nash "600" is built as a single unit of welded steel. This eliminates a quarter of a ton of useless weight, greatly increases safety, and does away with body squeaks and rattles.

Giving 25 to 30 miles on a gallon at moderate highway speeds, the new Nash "600" offers independent, cushion-coil springs on all four wheels, a new system of fresh, filtered, draftless, conditioned-air with all windows closed on the same principle stratosphere liners use. And unique with Nash is its optional full-size, built-in, convertible double bed.

This feature of a convertible bed, Mr. Schuldt emphasized, will have tremendous appeal to this community's many sportsmen and tourists who plan extended trips this winter and next spring.

More than 100 improvements will be found on the new Nash "600". Typical are its "Flying Scot" engine with greatly increased horsepower, its unique "sub-assembly" front end suspension, its new spaciousness with room for six big people, and its sound-killing "Sand-Mortex" insulation in all body panels.

"When you consider how advanced Nash engineering is," concluded Mr. Schuldt, "you know that the new Nash "600" is the car motorists of this community have hoped the automotive industry would build some day. Personally, I think it's the car truly headed for history."

PRODUCTION CREDIT FEATURES FARMER OWNERSHIP AT ANNUAL MEETING OF STOCKHOLDERS

The directors of the Fox Valley Joliet Production Credit Association have decided to hold the annual stockholders' meeting in to sections this year, the first section at the Ottawa St. Methodist church in Joliet on December 4, 1945 and the second section at the Community Hall in Sugar Grove on December 5, 1945. Both meetings will begin at 11:00 a. m.

The feature of the meeting will be farmer ownership. There will be two panel discussions, one put on by the members and the other by the farm advisers from the seven counties, viz., Cook, DeKalb, DuPage, Kane, Kankakee, Kendall and Will.

The association has made some marvelous progress this year by increasing the amount loaned to farm members 20 percent over that of the same period last year. At the same time, there has been a phenomenal increase in net earnings which will be added to reserves to further strengthen the association for the anticipated less favorable economic situation in the post-war period.

The advisory committees of the seven counties all believe that now is the opportune time to make the association completely farmer owned. Because of this expressed interest, the subject will be discussed and acted upon by the stockholders at these meetings.

GRAY frost-brown stubble — and the green of the pines—but even better looking the black and white or the brown and white of a pointer or setter freezing into action on the covey point — the only competitor who reaches top competitive form as immovable as marble. Quail hunting with a good dog may not be the king of sports, but a good many millions think so and their day isn't far ahead. And the dog is really the king of this autumn and winter thrill.

This occurred to us when we ran into Andy Sage, the Long Island sportsman, who owns and develops more champion field trial dogs than anyone we can recall off hand. His dogs have won the national championship six times, four of them in a row against the former record of two in a row.

They have also won the big futurity seven times in a row and they will be just as hard to beat in the coming tests on ahead.

"My best dog," Mr. Sage said, "is Ariel, winner of six championships. Ariel is now seven years old but can still range with the best. There are three fundamental qualities that make a great bird dog—scent, speed and stamina. In field trial tests there is also the matter of ranging class or form to be considered. In my opinion it is harder to breed and develop a champion dog than it is a champion horse. There are many good bird dogs, of course, but few great ones that can win championships against the best. Ariel is my pick but Luminary isn't far behind."

Field Trial Thrills

Clyde Morton trains the Sage entries in a secluded hamlet known as Alberta, Ala., which isn't far away from Selma. These championship field trials range all the way from Saskatchewan and Duluth to East Tennessee and while there are no mutual windows, no football or baseball cheering, they have just as great a thrill for those who love the hunting dog and who travel far distances to see the best at work. The judges in these championship tests give their time, attention and devotion to their work without any pay and they contribute a big part to any field trial's success.

The thousands of ex-servicemen and millions of others now in the woods and fields enjoy a double thrill.

The first is the work of the dogs, without any question the most eager form of life in pursuit of the quarry.

The next thrill comes at the covey's rise when the tense silence is suddenly broken by the whirr of many wings—an easy looking target but an elusive one except for the experts. The first average tendency is to shoot too quickly and also to blaze away at the covey in place of selecting a single or double target.

One of your correspondent's greatest shocks is to fire and see no feathers fall where so many feathers seemed to be at a close and unmissable range.

When you take up the major thrills of sport, the football player can offer a long run through a broken field or a long completed pass. The golfer has his long iron dead to the pin. The baseball player can counter with the home run or the triple. The horse player will take his chance on hitting a 50 to 1 shot on the nose—or winning a husky daily double.

The Elusive Turkey

You can hear the clamor of the 10 million fishermen, moving from trout to bass to salmon to tarpon. But the nearest thrill to the dogs working and the covey rise is to see a wild turkey light in a tall pine close to your hide-out—and then try to spot him later only 20 yards away, as all 20 pounds of him suddenly vanish and yet you know he is there. Here is the greatest of all camouflage artists. The incomparable will o' the wisp.

Yes, even with a few occasional diamondbacks thrown in, I'll take turkey hunting and give you the memory of a 40-foot putt with the match all squared on the 18th green.

No wonder Andy Sage would rather have Ariel than another Man o' War. Or would he?

Field trials now cover a big part of the country. For example, Duluth has become a leading center in this respect where next spring Duluth sportsmen expect to hold one of the leading trials of the season. The East also has its trials and its share of good dogs.

For here is sport in the final meaning of the word.

Beau Jack Warm Up

On the way to another football gathering we got offside and bumped into Bowman Milligan and Chick Wergeles, who are handling the pugilistic destinies of the returning Beau Jack.

"We have sent Beau Jack back to Augusta to ready for his next fight," Chick Wergeles said. "He weighs 144 pounds now and will soon be down to 140. Beau Jack is to meet the winner of the Janiro-Greco fight late in December."

Man About Town:

Faces About Town: U. S. Senator Warren Magnuson in the St. Moritz foyer. . . . Lovely Jan Clayton, the "Carousel" star, actually being seen in public with a critic! . . . Dame May Whitty, the 80-year-old star, whose mute eloquence in the last act of "Therese" at the Biltmore is something for players to study. . . . Sec'y of the Treasury Vinson encountering H. Morgenthau and saying: "You're a smart man, Henry; you got out at the top!" . . . In Sardi's, Nancy Walker swapping salutes, while a one-time "world's most famous woman" went unrecognized—Irene Castle.

Sallies in Our Alley: Some midtowners were planning a testimonial dinner for a showman and wondered who to get for toastmaster. "If we can't get Jimmy Walker," one said, "how about Nick Kenny?" . . . "What!" exclaimed another, "And have all the introductions in rhyme?" . . . Ozzie Nelson knows some actors in a new Broadway show who fell asleep watching critic George Jean Nathan!

Midtown Vignette: She has a special job in a swank dinner place—studying the patrons the proprietor wants to see in his place often. If she approves "their looks," she learns their names and addresses, and they go on the spot's mailing list, etc. . . . Last night she was depressed. . . . The boss asked her: "What's on your mind—your feller?" . . . "Yes," she said. "We had a fight. I told him to romance everything in skirts in the U. S.—and then come back to me." . . . "Is that why you're so unhappy?" . . . "No," she replied, "it's this: After I told him that, I phoned the N. Y. Mirror and asked them how many girls there are in the U. S. A." . . . "And how many are there?" asked the boss. . . . "67,670,302!" she sighed.

Bigtown Side-Shows: When the President was here for Navy Day he congratulated the Mayor on finding a new home. . . . "Thanks," said the Li'l Flower, "you know it takes a lot of work hunting a new house these days. I trust you don't have to do that for a long, long time." . . . An amorous old fellow leaned across the table and whispered through the smoky night club atmosphere: "Let's go some place where we'll be alone." . . . "Okay," drawled his cutie. "Let's each go home." . . . Martin Ragaway, a gag-writer, phoned NBC's George Wolf. When Wolf learned it was Ragaway, he barked: "Gwan, you phony. The only time you ever call me is when you want something!" . . . "Go ahead, keep on talking," was the candid retort. "I'll think of something!"

The Big-Time: "The Lost Weekend," an intoxicating epic, with flawless acting by Ray Milland, Jane Wyman and the others—a Paramount click. . . . Jeanne Burns at the Monkey Bar. . . . Cass Daley's Sunday program via NBC. . . . The dancing of Kim and Kathy Gaynes in "The Girl from Nantucket." . . . Lee Sullivan's thrashing. . . . Jack Smith's on CBS. . . . "Tubby, the Tuba" (a Cosmo recording), a grand novelty. It's supposed to be the tragic tale of a tuba, unhappy because the other instruments make fun of him as all he can do is go oompah-oompah.

Main Stem Ticker: More important than the election or other news around our sector was the death of Jerome Kern. . . . There's a valet at the Sherry-Netherland Hotel who was once an Olympic track champ. Each ayem he paces three miles around the park and used to be accompanied by his dog. The dog is now ten years old and is winded. It now sits on a bench and waits for him. . . . Since Music Corp. of America signed up Mayor LaGuardia for a radio spot, wags say: "Looks like you have to break in your act at City Hall before MCA is interested!"

Sounds in the Night: At Reuben's: "She's glad the war is over. Now she can get parts for her face." . . . At Enduro: "He's an m.c.—mediocre comic." . . . At the Blue Angel: "She's the daughter of a social butterfly and he's a son of a bee." . . . At Villepigue's: "She thinks she has a corner on his love when she merely has one of the points of a triangle. . . . In the Dixie lobby: "Do you think Mark Twain will ever become another Bennett Cerf?"

Memos of a Midnighter: Guy Lombardo walked away with a Cleveland newspaper poll (as the nation's outstanding dance band) for the umpteenth time. . . . A Victoria Hotel (Candlelight Room) blonde waitress, they insist, is the daughter of a real countess. . . . Jimmy Ryan's benefit for that brave cop (killed by bandits) brought $1,000 to his family. . . . Midtown Lexington Avenue, they tell you, is getting unsafe for unescorted males after dark. . . . It's a boy for the Ed (CBS) Murrows in London.

Wealthy Fugitive Is Arrested as a Postoffice Thief

Prosperous Business Man, Respected for Years, Is Unmasked as Robber.

MAGNOLIA, DEL.—A prosperous business man respected here for 15 years was unmasked as a fugitive sought for a quarter of a century for an Illinois post office embezzlement, says the Chicago Tribune.

The man is James L. Parks, 67, known here as James L. Harris. He once was a teacher in the junior high school of Chicago's suburban Cicero and previously had been postmaster at Carbondale, Ill.

Until his sudden arrest on the old charge, Parks' whereabouts were last known to authorities in 1925 when he leaped through a window of the Dixie Flyer train as a Chicago policeman was returning him from Miami, Fla., to answer a fraud charge.

Appeared in Movies.

People here knew him only as a prosperous poultry raiser, prominent in community affairs, and a prize winning pie baker. He said he had used the name of Harris since adopting it some years ago when he was a movie actor in New York and appeared in the film, "A Kiss for Cinderella."

When federal and state policemen arrested him here, Parks was said to have had in his possession nearly $50,000 in cash and securities.

He promptly posted bail of $10,000 with 10 bills of $1,000 denomination when he was taken to Wilmington, and arraigned before United States Commissioner A. F. Polk. He pleaded not guilty to the charge of embezzling and waived hearing.

Parks is charged with embezzling $3,336 in World War I savings stamps while postmaster at Carbondale from 1912 to 1918. The loss was discovered after he left office and an indictment against him was returned at East St. Louis, Ill.

Admits His Identity.

Upon his arrest Parks readily admitted his earlier identity and insisted the charge was a result of errors.

At East St. Louis, however, United States Attorney William Hart disputed Parks' claim of errors by clerks and said the arrest followed a complete FBI investigation. The prosecutor said the statute of limitations had not run on the charge inasmuch as Parks had been a fugitive since the indictment.

A fraud charge was placed against Parks in 1924 after he allegedly defrauded Miss May C. Llewellyn, a Chicago school teacher, of her life savings of about $2,000 when they became engaged to marry. He was then married and the father of three children.

'Wing and Prayer' Flier

Home on Sad Mission

SAVANNAH, GA. — An army flier, whose exploit in piloting a crippled bomber back to its base in England inspired the song "Coming In On a Wing and a Prayer," was home recently on his saddest mission—to bury his 18-year-old brother.

Capt. Kendrick "Sonny" Bragg was in New York when told of the death of his brother Waring in an automobile accident near Augusta, Ga.

When he boarded a plane for Savannah he met another brother, Lt. Vernon Bragg of the navy, also on his way home on the same mission. Neither knew the other was to be aboard.

It was while he was a member of a Duke university Rose Bowl team that Captain Bragg met the song writer, Jimmy McHugh. From the European theater later, McHugh recalled in Los Angeles Bragg wrote him about "coming in on one engine with the crew praying—so I got an idea for a song."

Captain Bragg, discharged from the army recently, plans to enter Princeton to complete his college studies.

Finger Wave Sisters Are Working on Farm, Too

BROOKHAVEN, MASS. — Four sisters operate a 225-acre farm and a beauty shop in Brookhaven successfully and unassisted, it was reported by County Agent J. H. Price.

They are the May sisters—Myrie, Kathleen, Alice and Edith. The girls began operation of the farm four years ago when their father could no longer work.

In sight is the gradual building of a herd of 40 head of breeding cows.

Emphasis also is placed on using farm machinery as much as possible. The girls do all their own work both at the farm and beauty shop.

The girls say that farming is hard work, but that they love it. They said they hoped "some day to get out of the beauty business."

Fugitive Is Found Dead In a Fumigated House

SPOKANE, WASH. — One of five soldier prisoners who had escaped from Baxter general hospital was found dead in a house where he had taken refuge. The house had been fumigated with cyanide gas, and although warnings had been posted on the doors the prisoner may have overlooked them since he entered by breaking a window. The dead man was identified as Pvt. Robert Geese.

FIVE-TUBE RADIO transmitter and receiver, in the fuse of the shell, is the brain of the secret weapon. In flight, the transmitter broadcasts a continuous radio wave. Reflected back from the target, this wave explodes the shell at exactly the right moment!

THE SHELL WITH A "RADIO BRAIN"

NOT EVEN the Atomic Bomb was more "hush-hush" than the "Variable Time Radio Proximity Fuse"—a fuse mechanism that decides for itself when to explode; requires no advance setting.

Transmitter, receiver, and detonating mechanism all draw power from a tiny "Eveready" "Mini-Max" battery: a "powerhouse" rugged enough to withstand the shock of the gun's discharge: a force 20,000 times that of gravity!

TYPICAL of "Eveready" "Mini-Max" power in peacetime are these two tiny, powerful batteries! On the extreme left is a 22 1/2-volt battery for "cigarette case" radios small enough to wear! At its right is a 15-volt hearing-aid battery—for lighter, smaller, more economical hearing aids.

SNAPPY FACTS about RUBBER

A new rubber cement called "Plastilock" for binding metals, woods, plastics, has been developed by B. F. Goodrich.

Latex foam made of synthetic rubber can now be used in the manufacture of mattresses and other cushioning materials.

The goal of the rubber industry a few decades ago was a tire that would run 3,500 miles. Now it's not unusual for a passenger tire to run ten times that far.

Some of the first synthetic tires built in early war days lasted only fifty miles. Mileage of present synthetic tires compares favorably with natural rubber tires.
